

Classical Journal (London) Volume 14

Welcome to the Classics newsletter. The Department continues to flourish and the last academic year was both a busy and productive one for staff and students.

First of all we are delighted to welcome two Government of Ireland Presidential Fellows to the Department. Dr. Brian Kavanagh who will be with us for 2016-17 working on the paralympic poem Crisis, and Dr. Jacopo Taddei who has been awarded a two-year fellowship and will be working on an interdisciplinary project centred around Euripidean literary practice. We are very much looking forward to hearing more about their work.

We are always pleased to see former students and members of the Department, and this year we collaborated with Dr. Susanna Tancani in hosting participants in the University of Notre Dame conference Classics and the Public, 23-24-25-26. Many of the speakers had also studied with us, and indeed worked with us, at some point over the last 20 years and it was enormously gratifying to see so many of our former students enjoying academic success. The GradLink mentoring programme has been another opportunity for former contacts with former students who have gone on to succeed in other fields, and we warmly thank our 255 to 24 alumni for mentoring 20 of our students. If you are interested in becoming involved in the programme in the future, do please contact us.

We are always exploring ways to improve our course offerings at undergraduate and postgraduate level. Following on from the introduction of new 'vaster' modules in Greek and Latin language and Culture we are open to students across the university. 2016-17 sees the introduction of a new undergraduate pathway in Single Honours Classics. This will allow students with no training in either Latin or Greek to study both languages from beginning level. For full details please see our classical page. It is looking like a bumper year for Classics with 13 students currently registered for 1st year Single Honours, including seven on the new pathway.

The Department is also developing the Trinity Latin Project, spearheaded by Anna Colwell, Professor of Latin. This will bring Latin into the many schools where the language cannot currently be offered, with actual lessons, videos and blogs will guide the learner to a solid reading ability with actual Latin poetry and explore the cultural history of Ancient Rome.

Updates on our new initiatives, as well as news and details of events can be found on our website, and on Facebook. We hope you enjoy this year's newsletter. We look forward to staying in touch with you by letter, email, or through Facebook. We are also keen to share your success stories with fellow alumni in next year's newsletter, so please do not hesitate to get in contact.
